6 College Life

A GREATER SOUTHWESTERN can never be except it be built upon the life or lives of those into whose hands is given the moulding of her destiny, or the heralding of her onward march.

Should the name Southwestern be forgotten, there would still remain the imprint of a life of one whose quiet and unassuming ways have ever failed to proclaim the bigness of the man himself.

Few are the students who will not treasure the gift of a moment from those busy hours, and who, mindful of the heated forging of the complex college life, will not recall the sincere and timely guidance of "Prof Jawn," Counselor and Friend of the great Southwestern Family

To such a man, Professor John F. Phillips, Alumnus, Instructor, and Vice-President of Southwestern College, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-two is proud to dedicate this volume.

THE annual publication of the Junior Class of Southwestern College. This, the Ninth Volume, has been assembled and published by the Class of Nineteen Twenty-two as a record of their third collegiate year at Southwestern College

Foreword

WE trust that the 1921 Mound-builder shall not only record the past activities and achievements of our Alma Mater, but that it shall permanently preserve for you the happy memories of these, your college days.

To the faithful friends whose loyalty has crystallized into Southwestern's prosperity, may it partly reveal the workings of the school.

But more than this, we trust that it shall show that spirit of progress which has Southwestern in its grasp — the mighty wave which must eventually carry her to a place among the foremost institutions of learning in the great Middle West.

Smith Hall

THERE was brought to completion this year the first of a group of modern dormitories which it is planned to build for Southwestern students. This splendid building, a beautiful and convenient home for sixty girls, was made possible through an annuity gift of fifty thousand dollars made by Mr. and Mrs. Levi S. Smith of Kinsley, Kansas. The college grieves that Mr. Smith could not have lived to see the completion of the building.

Built upon the cottage style of architecture, with green gables, high chimneys, sheltered doorways, and divided sash windows, it presents a beautiful exterior. The pleasing simplicity of the interior decorations gives the various rooms a convivial, home-like appearance. The basement is equipped to be the boarding center of the college community. The commodious living room, the dormitory proper on the third floor and the girls' rooms all mark the very latest developments in comfort, convenience, and style.

Smith Hall, which has been pronounced the finest college dormitory in the Central West, forms the central one of three buildings eventually to be erected for the girls of Southwestern. Three similar dormitories will be provided for the men at corresponding positions on the opposite side of the campus according to the present plans.

The completion of this new structure marks the passage of the first mile post toward the development of Southwestern's campus which authorities have ranked as one of the three finest sites for the location of a college in the western part of the United States.

BOOK I

Greetings

TO all friends and graduates, to the present faculty and student body, to the on-coming generations of Southwesterners—Greetings! This volume is a replica of our beloved Southwestern. On these pages are pictured her halls of learning and her familiar scenes. Here are set forth her multiple organizations and her rich activities. Much of her wonderful spirit has been caught within the covers of this book and is reflected through its pages. Here intermingle study, play, friendship, religion—as befits a micro-cosmos dedicated to the building of manhood and womanhood. It is our confident hope that this book will prove itself to all friends and former students a proud record of continued growth and achievement, to the present Southwesterners a rich mine of treasured memories, and to that choice group in the high schools who should come on after them an added expression of welcome.

Historical

IN the early days of Southwestern College, two literary societies provided adequate opportunities for the literary training of the student body, but as the school grew in numbers, new groups of literary societies were needed. A few men and women, therefore, withdrew from the existing societies and assisted in the founding of new organizations.

In the fall of 1920, Southwestern's enrollment having passed the five hundred mark, the four well established literary societies could not adequately provide for the literary training of the enlarged student body. For the purpose of organizing two new societies, a faculty committee selected a group of founders from volunteers coming from the existing organizations. The faculty committee consisted of Professors Myers, Simmons, Stout, Mrs. Goldsmith, Miss Herr and Miss Price. The founders chosen were: Paul McCaffree, Lloyd Bertholf, Raymond Carey, Angell Falls, Tom Johnston, Llewellyn White, and R. L. Wells for the men; and Carmen Carey, Catherine Wrenchey, Helen Lawrence, Lillian George, Beulah Jones, Elise Harris, Dorothy Martin, Bertha Snyder, and Margaret Miller for the women.

The faculty committee met at the home of Professor Myers at 4:30 P. M., Saturday, September 25, 1920, and adopted a prospectus and a statement of purpose. They, together with the founders, met again Friday evening October 1, in the Y. M. den, elected members from those pledged on the regular pledging day, and appointed committees to perfect the organization of the two societies.

The First Mile-stone

TO-DAY we are looking back upon our first successful year as an integral part of Southwestern. We are justly proud of even the little we have already accomplished during this, the formative period.

Starting life without precedent or criterion, without money, without even a permanent place to meet, we have succeeded by sheer grit and determination in establishing a society fully competent to stand beside its older brothers.

Nor has all this been intangible. The part played by individual Alpha Betas in College activities is by no means small. Alpha Beta has been active in forensic work. An Alpha Beta has represented the school in oratory; there is an abundance of debate material. Nor has her talent been confined to forensics. She has contributed her share of athletes to Southwestern's prowess. Six members of the Campus Players are Alpha Betas. In every department of College activity Alpha Beta holds a prominent part, having contributed the Y. M. C.A. president and the Editor of the Collegian in the past year as well as many other minor offices.

Truly it has been a worth-while year,—the forerunner of even better years to come

And Those to Come

The future of Alpha Beta Alpha rests largely with those who are to come. In the absence of well established precedents, she can only offer the prospective member an opportunity for constructive work—a chance to grow and expand with the society.

Alpha Beta is no longer on a temporary basis. The fall of 1921 will see her housed in quarters as commodious as those of the older societies. Many of the smaller details have already been arranged. There is no hesitancy—no shame—connected with the invitation she extends to new students. The man entering Southwestern may find the same advantages here he might find elsewhere. Alpha Beta Alpha extends a most cordial invitation to all.

Thy name inspires to do our best,
 To play our part, to stand each test,
 All those who, loyal, keep in sight
 Thy creed, thy banner gold and white.

When, schooldays gone and lifes at hand,
 And on its threshold wide we stand,
 We'll cherish thee, old aims renew;
 To all thou taught us we'll be true,

The Athenian Literary Society

THE Athenian Literary Society is the oldest organization in Southwestern College. It was founded in 1889 and since that time approximately seven hundred men have been members. The purpose of Athens has always been to develop her members intellectually, socially, morally, and physically. She weighs her triumphs in terms of success in these four fields, and her training offers splendid opportunities for the development of literary qualities and leadership. Her literary work is four-fold, namely, Debate, Oratory, Music, and Dramatics.

The Athenian Gold Medal Debate Series, conducted annually by the Debate Chairman, has proved an efficient method of developing debaters and has placed many men on the college teams. The series, which is conducted by an elimination process, is open only to underclassmen. Gold and Silver Medals are awarded the winners of first and second places, respectively.

As a vital part of her literary schedule, Athens holds an Annual Oratorical Contest in which only under classmen may participate. Gold and Silver Medals are awarded the two winners in this contest also. Athens' production of twenty-two school representatives in oratory will vouch for the efficiency of her system of developing orators.

The various activities in Athens include many phases of musical work. She has a Male Quartette, a Brass Quartette, a String Quartette, a Reed Quartette, and an Orchestra. Each year Athens offers the Athenian Key for Music to the underclassman who excels in musical work.

Athens also offers the Athenian Key for Dramatics to the underclassman excelling in that art. It is the duty of the chairman of Dramatics to encourage dramatic talent for the regular programs.

The Annual Athenian Minstrel, which is put on during the spring term, is a clever combination of music and dramatics which affords ample opportunity for the development and display of the unusual.

The ranking of Athenians in scholarship is manifest by a review of the school which shows that many of the assistant positions in the departments of the school have been held by Athenians. Also a large proportion of the fellowships and scholarships have been awarded men of Athens.

Athens offers to one man in each Senior Class the Cap and Gown of the Athenian Succession. It is voted to the Senior member whose scholarship and general service to the society is most worthy of recognition.

The standing of Athens in the school is worthy of attention. In the society itself, offices are held by men who are capable, worthy and efficient. Athens has given her share of men who have filled places of responsibility in various associations and organizations in the school, such as presidents of the Y. M. C. A., oratorical associations, classes, clubs, and other organizations; also a great many of her men have been selected as captains and managers of athletic teams, and as editors and managers of the Collegian and Moundbuilder.

Athens stands for social development and in her halls many have come to know the real meaning of friendship. She strives to develop men of high ideals and lofty thinking, who will be of social worth to the communities in which they find their fields of activity after leaving Southwestern. Through the social events of the year consisting of banquets, receptions, surprises, hikes, luncheons, and breakfasts, which are enjoyed with the sister society, Belles Lettres, ample opportunity is given for the formation of ideal social habits.

Athens offers an opportunity to the man who desires all-round development. Athens invites men of honor and ambition to join her ranks.

Significant in its very situation of the high ideals of the founders is the home of Sigma Pi Phi. Its many rows of seats face the friendly light of the Sunny South, while through its long line of widows rushes in the invigorating air of the glorious golden West. Here every Thursday evening gather a great band of girls and their friends, who believe that the ideal college life is neither all work nor all play, and that the highest type of student must be developed in four ways: physically, mentally, morally, and socially. Sigma girls have chosen to help in this development and to that end have named three noble qualities as especially to be sought for in college life, namely, Friendship, Loyalty, and Learning. College is a place for the forming of new ideals. Sigma strives to help her daughters to gain new conceptions of the highest ideals and then to realize them.

FRIENDSHIP—Hikes, surprises, receptions, and banquets, all aid in turning acquaintanceships into real friendships which last throughout life.

LOYALTY—Sigma teaches her daughters to regard, as one of their greatest privileges, the formation and maintenance of an unshakable loyalty to sister students, to the society itself, to the college of which it forms a part, to the church, and to God.

LEARNING—In order that every girl may receive an equal chance for literary development, Sigma aims that every member shall appear on the program several times during the year. As an added incentive to earnest effort there are awarded every year prizes to those girls ranking highest in three competitive contests. The first of these is the Fleming Medal, given annually by Edith Fleming to the Freshman or Sophomore girl doing the best all round literary work. The second is the Drummond Debate Medal, given by Neva Drummond to the winner of the society debate contest. Then there are two prizes of ten dollars and five dollars given by Iva Conner and Olive Hull to the girls ranking first and second in the Sigma oratorical contest.

To those girls who would live with such ideals, Sigma extends a hearty welcome.

The Delphian Literary Society

At the southwest corner of the third floor of Richardson Hall is the society home of Delphi. It is here that the members gather each Friday evening for their regular literary and business sessions.

Delphi, founded in 1895, has always striven to uphold the highest standards of literary, social, and mental ideals. As an aid in maintaining her literary standard, she has perfected a well organized series of contests. Each member, at every appearance on a regular program, is graded by three judges, who are active society members. At the close of the year the man having the highest average for all round society work is awarded Delphi's most coveted prize, the Frazier Medal, which is given by S. D. Frazier, an honorary member of the society. Another medal offered is the Kantz Debate Medal, presented by Ralph C. Kantz, a former Delphian, to the Freshman ranking highest in the Freshman debate series. H. Ogden White of the Class of '18, presents the White Trophy, a ring bearing the society seal, to the Freshman who excels in all round literary work.

Recognizing the importance of oratory, the society offers a gold medal to the Delphian, regardless of classification, who wins first place in the society oratorical contest.

When Southwestern's best interests demanded a third literary society for men President Kirk called for volunteers from the front rank members of the two old societies to be founders of the new society, Six Delphians responded and three of them, Paul McCaffree, Angell Falls, and Raymond Carey, were chosen by the faculty committee as founders.

Delphi has always furnished more than her share of leaders in all college activities and is maintaining this enviable record. As a society we invite men of honor and ambition into our ranks, who are willing to work hard and who will share the responsibilities of upholding the high standards of Delphi.

THE Southwestern Collegian is the four page student publication which is edited each Thursday of the school year. The Collegian Board, elected by the student body, appoints each year the editor, business manager, associates, and associate business manager. There have been two editors this year, owing to the acceptance by Mr. Bertholf of the honor of an assistantship at John's Hopkins University at mid-year.

The principal purpose of the paper, as with most typical college publications, is to keep a historical record of all the activities of the college. However, an attempt is made through the discussion of college problems, the printing of alumni and inter-collegiate news, features, and local wit, to reduce as much as possible the monotony resulting from the recounting of events generally well known before the paper is published.

THE Student's Council is a representative organization of the student body to permit a degree of self-government in student activities. Eighteen students, six elected from each upper class and three from each lower class, compose the Council's membership. Prof. J. F. Phillips, Chairman of the Faculty Administration Committee, acts as ex-officio president of the Council. The other officers, a vice-president and secretary, are chosen the first of each semester by the newly elected Council. Committees are appointed to take care of the routine work.

All matters with respect to student enterprizes, activities, and organizations are dealt with in the Council which acts as a board of arbitration between students and organizations of students. The entire amount of student funds is under the Council's supervision. A third function of the body is the assumption of responsibility for awarding athletic letters and emblems of honor for forensics. All the athletics of the school are under its direction.

Since its organization in 1911, the Student's Council has proved to be a valuable and satisfactory medium of relationship between the Administration of the College and the student body.

Young Women's Christian Association

THE Young Women's Christian Association of Southwestern is a student organization aiming at the harmonious development of the four-fold life of Southwestern women—their physical, mental, social, and religious natures. In turn it is loyally supported by practically all of the women of the school. Every member finds a definite place on a committee where she contributes time and talents to some special form of Association work.

The summer months find the Membership and Big Sister committee girls writing personal letters to Freshmen girls. At the opening of school the Social committee joins them in a Get-Acquainted and Like-Southwestern program. A mixer, a hike, and a joint Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. reception to new students are given. Every Big sister and upper-class woman unites in drawing the younger girls into the real sisterhood of Southwestern. The membership campaign is conducted by a personal canvass during the fourth week when the new girls pledge themselves to promote the purpose of the Association. The candle-lighting service is used to initiate members.

Through the World Fellowship committee the Y. W. C. A. has assumed a definite responsibility for foreign work. A total of fifteen hundred dollars is being raised during a period of three years to equip a Biology Laboratory in our Sister College, the Women's College of Foochow, China. The pledges come as a personal sacrifice on the part of the girls here for their sisters over there.

Very creditable work is being accomplished by Southwestern students among the Mexican inhabitants of Winfield. Classes in English, Sanitation, Civics, and Physical Training are conducted in homes, at the camps and at the Salvation Army building. More extensive work is planned for the spring among the small children, while the women of the churches are cooperating with the college girls in starting classes for the women in cooking and sewing. Other groups in the Social Service committee center their work in the State Home and in the Orphans' Home.

The devotional meetings of the Association are held on Wednesday morning at chapel time. Half of the meetings of the year have been led by students in discussion of campus problems and on special programs. A number of Faculty and Advisory Board members as well as speakers sent by the Field committee and the Student Volunteer Movement have made interesting addresses before the Association. In conjunction the Publicity committee furnish the posters, announcements, write-ups, and reading material which keep the student body alive to a variety of enterprises.

"I am come that they might have light, and that they might have it more abundantly."

The Young Men's Christian Association

THE Y. M. C. A., always an active, vital organization, paramount in the religious activities of the men of Southwestern, has this year, not only retained its rightful place, but has outstripped the expectations of its most optimistic friends. The completion of the school year '20-'21 marks the close of perhaps an unparalleled series of achievements toward the goal of the "Y," namely, the development of the highest type of Christian manhood.

The activities of the Association are not confined to the regular devotional meetings and social affairs, but have branched out, through its various departments, into the practical fields of Christian service within the school. Moreover, the local organization was not found wanting in its financial contribution to promote the world-wide movements of the Association. Two hundred dollars of the thousand dollar budget, which incidentally was loyally subscribed in less than twenty minutes, went to headquarters for that purpose.

The responsibility of organization and the duties of general managership fall upon the President while the regular Wednesday morning meetings are under the surveillance of the Vice-President. The value of these weekly men's meetings in a co-educational school such as Southwestern, can scarcely be overestimated.

Perhaps the most significant phase of the devotional meetings this year has been the Life-Work Guidance speakers. Of all problems confronting a college man, the obligation of choosing a life-work is the most difficult. Consequently, first-hand information on the various vocations is most welcome. Representatives of the following professions have presented their field of activity to the men during the past year: law, medicine, engineering, chemistry, ministry, journalism, the foreign field, teaching, Y. M. C. A. work, agriculture, and general business.

An employment agency has helped a large number of men to secure employment outside of school hours this year. Also, the free distribution of a Handbook of Information and the maintenance of an information bureau in the Y. M. "den" aided the new students with their first day troubles this year.

The Y. M. Stag party, a big romp in Prexy's Barn, never fails to wipe out homesickness the first week of school. The Joint Reception with the Y. W. C. A. is the first real get-acquainted "mixer" of the year. These social events are followed by a gospel team supper with a grand stag finale in the spring in the form of a Chicken Pie Supper.

To ten communities in a southeastern Kansas and northern Oklahoma, the mention of Southwestern's Gospel Teams recalls a week of church awakening and renewed spiritual activity aroused by the revival meetings held by five S. C. men during the Christmas vacation. Under the direction of the Religious Education department, leaders were chosen, teams organized and sent out to Methodist charges where the need was the greatest, for the number of teams was inadequate to supply the demand. Each team was composed of a leader, a boy's worker, a chorister and two other members. The total score of the week's meetings was one hundred and forty-three conversions and nearly a hundred reconsecrations.

Southwestern will be represented at the Y. M. Conference at Estes Park this summer by no less than ten men. Ten days in the mountains, associating with the highest stamp of men in the country, promise to make a bright spot in the life of every man who goes.

THE Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions originated at the first international conference of Christian college students which was held at Mt. Hermon, Mass., 1886. It is international and interdenominational. It is in no sense a mission board, and does not send out missionaries to the foreign field, but is a student movement which serves as a recruiting agency for foreign missions and the volunteer goes to the field under the regular missionary organization of his church. Over 8,000 student volunteers have reached the foreign field during the short life of the movement.

Once in each student generation there is held a World Student Volunteer Convention, the last one being held at Des Moines, last year. Each year Kansas has a State Student Volunteer Conference. These mean very much in the college life of a student, and many attend who are not volunteers.

The Student Volunteer Band of Southwestern was organized in 1901 with six members. It is constituted of the students who have declared it their purpose, if God permit, to become a foreign missionary. Its object is to deepen the missionary purpose and the spiritual life of the members, to secure other volunteers, to work together in preparing ourselves for the work we believe God intends for our lives, and to promote the foreign missionary life and activities in the college and in the community.

THE Wesleyan Brotherhood of Southwestern College was founded to help minister to the needs of those actively engaged in, and those looking forward to the Christian ministry as a life calling. The organization was perfected on September 29, 1920, with the following men as charter members: President A. E. Kirk, Professor J. W. Simmons, Rev. R. A. Dadisman, Rev. R. L. George, District Superintendent of the Winfield District, Rev. W. J. VanCleve, District Superintendent of the Liberal District, Rev. I. D. Harris, Pastor of Grace Church, together with twenty-six Southwestern men who are student pastors or who are preparing for the ministry.

The meetings of the Brotherhood are held in an upper room at Grace Church every Wednesday evening following the regular prayer meeting hour. It is desired to make this upper room as potent a factor in the lives of the members as was that upper room in Jerusalem where the early disciples tarried for the endowment of power from on high.

Anti-Tobacco Oratorical Contest

The Anti-Tobacco Association of Kansas held its annual convention at Southwestern, March 7th and 8th. The schools represented in the contest were: Kansas Wesleyan, Miltonvale College, McPherson College, Central College, Cooper, Tabor and Southwestern. Donald Nicholson, representing Southwestern, took fifth place, the oration entitled "Tobacco Next."

Old Line Contest

The Old Line Oratorical Contest was held at Topeka. The schools participating were: Washburn, Kansas Wesleyan, Baker, Bethel, Fairmount and Southwestern. Southwestern was represented in this contest by Levi Rymph, whose oration entitled "E Pluribus Unum," took fourth place.

Women's State Oratorical Contest

The women's state oratorical contest was held this year at Friends University April 28th. The schools represented were Friends, Fairmount, Sterling, C. of E. Washburn and Southwestern. Southwestern was represented by Lillian Cloud, whose oration, entitled "The Destiny of Our Nation," won second place.

Southwestern Women's Quartette

EISIE WULFMEYER, GLADYS SAUNDERS, RUBY SAUNDERS

THE Southwestern Women's Quartette this year has had an unusually successful season, ranking for the first time in the history of the school, with the Men's Quartette as college entertainers. Their appearance never fails to be highly appreciated, not only by home audiences, but also by audiences which they have entertained on their tours and engagements during the year.

The four girls are chosen by the voice instructor of the Fine Arts Department in an open try-out at the beginning of the year. Like the Men's Quartette, their entertainments are under the supervision of that Department.

Assisted by an accompanist and a reader, the Quartette is able to present a variety of numbers, both musical and dramatic, which would do credit to any group on the Chautauqua or lyceum platform.

THE Southwestern Male Quartette is selected each year from the Men's Glee Club by the voice instructor and its activities are under the surveillance of the Fine Arts Department.

The Quartette is doubtless the most popular group of entertainers on the platform of the college. In choosing its members as wide a variety of talent as possible is assembled so that their entertainments are not restricted to voice work alone. Their program consists of vocal quartettes, duets, and solos; cornet, trombone, and piano numbers, and readings. A one-act comedy is a feature of this year's program.

During the summer vacation the Quartette tours the Southwest Kansas Conference in the interests of the college. Their high-class entertainments have proved an excellent medium of advertising for Southwestern.

The Men's Glee Club is one of the outstanding organizations in the Department of Fine Arts. It is composed of twenty-four voices selected from the men of the school by the director of the club. Although the organization this year is composed entirely of new voices, under the competent directorship of Professor Royer, it has developed into an organization worthy of any college.

During the month of February, the club made a tour of the state, giving concerts at Valley Center, Halstead, Lyons, McPherson and Wichita. Every program was received by exceptionally large audiences, and the splendid entertainment given the club proved the tour a great success.

The club has united with the Ladies' Glee Club, College Chorus, St. John's chorus and the Church Choirs of the city in presenting "The Holy City" at the May Festival during Commencement week.

THE Southwestern College Band is an organization composed of students who play band instruments and who are willing to devote a small part of their time and talent in the production of good band music.

The Band is under the direction of the Fine Arts Department, but it is customary for that Department to choose one of the members to act as Student Band Leader throughout the school year. Mr. Conroy Trillingham is the leader at present.

The primary object of the band is to develop its members in that particular field of music. Secondly, the Band furnishes music for the school's athletic contests, besides playing at Rooter's Club chapels and various celebrations during the year. Concerts, one at mid-year and another in the spring, are the formal appearances of the organization. The Band will have an important part in the Annual Music Festival in the spring, which, no doubt, will be one of Southwestern's most significant productions.

THE Music courses have been carefully designed to graduate the student with the best and most complete training possible in the branch of study selected by the student. The Supervisor's Course is exceptionally strong. This course prepares students to become teachers and supervisors of music in grade and high schools at the end of two year's study. Ineta Neal, Elsie Wulfmeyer, Clyde Stocking, Gladys Upstone, and Eva Morrison make up the first graduating class in this splendid course at Southwestern.

Arrangements are being made whereby the Students of Southwestern College, registered in the Supervisor's Course, will have the privilege of the use of the Public Schools of Winfield for Observation and Practice Teaching. The immense advantages thus opened to the students are obvious as Winfield schools are noted throughout the country.

IN the Spring of '19 the dramatic interests of Southwestern had reached the stage which warranted a definite organization for the purpose of furthering the amateur standards of the school. With this in view, eleven members of the Dramatics Class, taught by Miss Martha Lee, met with her and laid the foundations for the Campus Players. It was decided that the membership should be fixed at fifteen - nine men and six women. Olney D. Newman was chosen President, Lenore Aller, Secretary, and Irma Thomas, business manager.

Campus Players are closing their second year with the spring production, "The Mob," a Galsworthy play of exceptional merit. It has been Miss Lee's policy to present the most representative contemporary productions and as a consequence Southwestern has witnessed several plays which do credit to much larger organizations.

The membership up to the present time includes the following people: Newman, Myers, King, Bray, Aller, Tennery, Thomas, Barnes, Beach, Fulton, Headrick, the charter members; and Waddle, Johnston, Moore, Orr, Messerli, McCaffree, Mayse, Leatherman, Hartenbower, Detter, Bertholf, C. Bloxom, McGuire, Carey, and White.

BENEATH the placidity of the ordinary grind of lessons and activities moves an undercurrent of healthy, youthful enthusiasm which, frequently breaking out, marks college life as earthly paradise. Largely through the activities of the Rooters' Club, which is pep personified, Southwestern is noted for this school spirit. By ingenious chapel stunts, downtown parades, midnight rallies, and raids on enemy camps, bonfires, aeroplane flights, funerals for fallen opponents—anything and everything but poor sportsmanship—it boosts the representatives of the school.

Under the leadership of President Warren, the Rooters' Club this year has been incessantly on the job of keeping the old purple and white on top.

THE Southwestern Society for Sociological Research was organized this year under the direction of Professor Ross by a group of upper classmen with six hours of college work in the Department of Social Science as the requisite for membership. Through a more complete and practical analysis of social problems than is possible in the classroom, the Society aims to promote advanced research in the field of Sociology. The reasons for and methods of checking juvenile delinquency has received special attention through the study of data collected in original investigations by Professor Ross.

The Society plans an extensive study of conditions in Winfield as a part of its future work. Membership in the National Organization for Sociological Research is a possibility as the Society is apparently established on a permanent basis.

The Society now has eighteen charter members and three honorary members, Professors Stout, Ewald, and Altvater. This year's officers are Darwin Wells, President, and Joy Scott, Secretary.

THE Southwestern Chemical Society, organized for the purpose of studying current literature involving research and chemical problems of the day, was founded the first of this school year by majors in the chemistry section of the Science Department. Active membership consists only of persons taking Chemical Journal Seminar, although associate membership is open to anyone interested in the work. Plans are now under way for affiliating the Society with Theta Chi Delta, a national organization with the similar aim of study in and the extension of the field of chemistry.

A number of noted chemists have addressed the society at various times during the year on subjects of practical value and interest to students of chemistry.

At the regular weekly meetings reports and discussions serve to mutually benefit the members of the organization. The present officers are John Queen, President, and La Vere Davis, Secretary-Treasurer.

All Stars

THE unbroken string of dazzling pigiron victories of the immortal aggregation of mighty satellites, the All Stars, again this year so greatly surpassed the record of the varsity that the battle-scarred heroes, according to the ancient custom, gathered with their admiring Staresses in the attic of Richardson Hall where they vehemently proclaimed the everlasting glory of their valorous deeds. The splendor and magnificance of this glorification as well as the eloquence of the egotistic veterans surpasses all the other social affairs of the school as kindergarten tea parties. Toggled out in motley gorgeous outfits, the gallants escort their favorite ladies to their majestic attic hall where their super-modest self aggrandizement at the regal feast served by new Stars is truly awe inspiring. The election of officers is simple for each Star invariably nominates himself. This year Mustardine Brown, Bitter End, and Caffelora Warren, Hen Cackle, emerged on top and will lead the exalted aggregation through the coming season to traditional triumph.

Coach Willis S. Bates

Coach Bates is one of Southwestern's greatest assets. He is one of the best coaches in the state and much of the credit for Southwestern's success in athletics belongs to him. He is known as "Bill" by the students and his jovial good nature has made him unanimously popular with them.

1919 Football Review

THE prospects for a successful season were indeed bright when the gridiron candidates of 1919 made their initial appearance on the field. Besides the seven letter men which included Dalbom, Grimsley, and Jennings, who had won all-state honors, there was an unusually large number of recruits. From this material, through gruelling practice, Coach Bill moulded a team which was both weighty and fast.

After defeating Cooper, Hays and Friends, the team had hopes of going through the season without defeat. But these hopes were crushed in the College of Emporia game when the C. of E. aggregation tallied two touch-downs and the Moundbuilders failed to score. The following week with the team crippled and the chances for the championship practically gone, the Batesmen put up the best fight of the season when they defeated the strong Emporia Normal eleven. The second defeat of the year came at the hands of Baker. The game was close and was a good exhibition of football. When Fairmount came down, the Jinx was with the Builders. The visitors were completely outclassed with a score of 20 to 0. The Swedes from Bethany proved to be another easy mark and took the count 27 to 7. In the final game at Pittsburg, though Southwestern was ahead twice, the Teachers succeeded in nosing out the Moundbuilders by three points.

1920 Football Review

WITH little material and some of the best men of the 1919 squad graduated, the football prospects of the 1920 season were not the best. Leatherman, Grimsley, Kahler, and several other letter men were back, but without Dalbom, for four years Southwestern's star quarter-back, the team was greatly in need of a man possessing the brains and ability required to pilot it through a successful season.

The first encounter was with Cooper. It was an easy victory for Southwestern, the second team playing the first three quarters. The following game with the heavier and more experienced Oklahoma Aggies was a battle royal. The 7 to 7 score was an encouragement and it was hoped that the Moundbuilders would show unexpected strength, but the Fairmount game was characterized by ragged playing on the part of both teams and closed without either being able to score. The following week C. of E. completely outclassed the Bates aggregation, but Southwestern came back in great style and defeated the Emporia Normals by a 13 to 7 score. The account of the remaining games is a hard luck story as there were no more victories.

In terms of games won and lost the season was a disappointment; nevertheless, there never was a Southwestern team that worked harder or played a cleaner brand of ball than the 1920 season.

1919-20 Basketball Review

THE completion of the heaviest schedule that a Moundbuilder aggregation ever attempted without a single defeat was an accomplishment of which Southwestern College is justly proud. Besides winning the State Championship, the 1919 quintet set a new record in Southwestern's basketball history. Never before has a Builder squad gone through an all victorious season.

The first up-state trip offered the most difficulties. In the Emporia Normal game the Normals sprung a surprise by leading in the first half, but the Batesmen, rallying in the last few minutes, finished the score 44 to 32 in their favor. The following night the Ottawa aggregation turned loose a series of new formations which for the first ten minutes had the Southwestern five dazed and at the end of that period Ottawa was leading by a score of 21 to 4. But the Builders came back and played a spectacular game, finishing five points ahead of their opponents. In none of the following games was Southwestern's superiority threatened, all of them being won by more than a ten point margin. Two post season games were arranged with the Henry Kendall College five, which had won victories over all the best teams in Oklahoma and Texas. The Oklahoma quintet was easily defeated in both encounters, thus yielding to Southwestern an undisputed title to the championship of Texas and Oklahoma as well as Kansas.

The team is deserving of the highest commendation. Gardner was selected as Captain of the all-state team and Cairns won a place as guard. Keyes and Kahler were awarded positions on the second team and Dalbom won honorable mention.

The National Basketball Tournament

Southwestern Winners of Second Place

THE great American basketball classic was held this year at Kansas City. From the Great Lakes to the Gulf and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, picked teams, the Nation's best basketekers, gathered to match their skill. In the minds of the critics, Southwestern, the "Village College Team" as it was at first dubbed, was one of the least of the thirty-two; but the sentiment changed. By surpassing all other college fives, Southwestern achieved National fame in the basketball world.

The Moundbuilder's initial game was with the Whiting Owls. The Owls were former National Champions and were favorites with the Eastern coaches who had seen them in action, some of them having gone so far as to pick them for the Championship. The defeat of the Whiting team by the Collegians was the first surprise of the tournament. The Batesmen took the lead at the outset and held it despite the desperate attempts of the Indiana team. The contest was stubbornly fought from start to finish, the score being twenty-eight to twenty-one.

The second game of the series was with the strong Tabernacle team of Kansas City. They were defeated by a score of thirty-three to thirty-one in a brilliant game marked by fast play and the result was doubtful until the end of the contest.

The following night the Builders fought their way into the semi-finals. Playing a great brand of basketball, they easily eliminated the Des Moines team. The Iowans, though reputed to be a fast bunch, were no match for the Southwesterners who rolled up fifty-one points to their opponent's twelve.

The Atlanta Athletic Club was by no means an easy team to defeat, but the Builders piled up a big score in the early stages of the game with the Southerners. In the last half the Georgians rallied, but failed to come out ahead, the score being thirty-six to thirty-one.

The last night ten thousand fans saw the K. C. A. C. game which authorities say was the fastest in court history. For the first five minutes the Southwesterners held the Kansas City five helpless by their attack of sensational long shots. Then the Singer-De Bernardi combination limbered up and rolled in four goals in rapid succession and the battle royal began. Only once in the first half did the Blue Diamonds lead, but after the first few minutes the Builders were never more than five points ahead. The gun ended the first half with the score twenty-one to twenty in favor of Southwestern. When the second half began, the tension was fearful. The Batesmen shot from all angles of the court with amazing accuracy. The Athletic Club retaliated with short passes and sure shots. Then De Bernardi broke the dead-lock with two baskets, giving the Missouri five a lead of four points. The Collegians were never again in the lead and the greatest basket-ball game in history ended with the Kansas City Athletic Club National Champions by six points.

In the State

In the State the Builders had a rather erratic season. Showing at times flashes of the brilliant form of which they were capable, they lost to teams who should have been defeated decisively. But in the words of a prominent authority in the state, "Southwestern lost several games in the Kansas Conference, yet no other team in the state could have approached the Bates Five in their final games."

EDMUND CAIRNS, CAPTAIN

All-American Guard

"Chop" is a Winfield High School product and was captain of its all victorious team of 1919. This was his second year at Southwestern. Cairns has the unique record of having played forty-seven consecutive games without suffering defeat. His work at the National Tournament was so outstanding that he was chosen all-American guard. In addition to that he has held an all-state position for two years.

VINCENT KEYES

All-American Guard

Keyes, one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Southwestern, has won letters for four years in three sports and has captained teams in each of them. He is widely known throughout the state for his ability and clean sportsmanship. "Keysie" is a graduate of Pretty Prairie High School. He made himself famous as a basketball player at the Kansas City tournament and was chosen as All-American guard. The Moundbuilders will miss him next year.

GEORGE GARDNER

Captain-elect

George is one of the greatest forwards ever produced in this part of the country. For three years he has been chosen All-State forward, and has scored more than any other man in the conference. He is a graduate of Arkansas City High School. At the National Tournament he was one of the outstanding forwards and received honorable mention when the All-American Team was chosen. He was awarded his third "S" for basketball this year. He also has letters in football and track.

PAUL REIF

"Pete" was captain of last year's Winfield High School team which won National fame in Wisconsin. He was considered the best all around player entered in the National high school tournament. He is a great forward and with another year's experience has the ability to become as good a player as Singer, the marvelous forward, who captains the All-American Team this year. Reif is a forward on both the second All-American and the second All-State teams.

ARTHUR KAHLER

Kahler is a product of Arkansas City High School and was Captain of the basketball team there during his Senior year. "Art's" fame as an athlete is not limited to basketball. He has been one of the mainstays of the football team and is a good track man. In the capacity of center, he was considered by many of the critics at the National Tournament to be second only to the great De Bernardi. He received honorable mention when the All-American was picked and was center on the All-State team.

CHARLES KASTOR

"Charlie" is from Harper High School and is an all around athlete. Last year he was captain of Southwestern's state championship track team. Kastor is a man who can always be depended on in any sport and he could make any college quintet in the state, but has been unfortunate in attending college during the reign of such great forwards as Dalbom, Gardner, and Reif. He will receive his second letter in basketball this year and is the only man on the team besides Keyes who will graduate in the spring.

BOYD SMITH

"Toy" is one of the best guards ever turned out by Winfield High School. At the state high school tournament several years ago not a man whom he guarded made a single basket. Last year he was a guard on the Manhattan freshman team. He made his first letter at Southwestern this year and will fill Keyes' place on next year's team. Basketball is not his only sport; he is a football and a track letter man.

JAMES GARDNER

"Jimmie" is a member of the basketball famous Gardner family of Arkansas City. Although he entered school too late to make his letter this year, he is one of the eight men who made Southwestern famous at the National Tournament. He has a high school record back of him and great things are expected of him next year.

Basketball Review

THE 1919-1920 Women's basketball season at its opening bid fair to be a victorious one. Four letter women were back and there were a large number of former high school stars out for practise.

The opening games with St. John's was a walkaway for the Builders. Bray and Hedrick at the forward positions piled up a total of thirty-five points, while Marshall and Messerli as guards held the Saints down to seven points. Cloud and West played stellar games in the central division of the court.

The other two games of the season resulted in defeat for the Southwesterners. The Normal girls were unusually large and played above the heads of the Builders, while the C. of E. team was simply too fast for the Bateswomen.

However, the Builder women were fast and had good team work. Had not the up-state team been usually strong, they would no doubt had a more successful season.

Basket Ball Review

GIRLS' basketball was a decided success in Southwestern this year. Forty girls were on the floor when the whistle blew for the first practice. With such a squad and with Coach Bates as director, it is no wonder that the season's results were gratifying.

Five games were scheduled, all but two of which were with other Kansas colleges. In the two out-of-state games with the Oklahoma girls of Phillips University, the Southwesterners suffered defeat by narrow margins. In their own state the Builders had an all-victorious season, defeating all their opponents and returning from the state trip with the title "Champions of Kansas."

The personnel of such a team is deserving of commendation. Captain Cloud usually reigned at center, but Marian Bray was a worthy understudy. They were ably assisted by Helen West or Lois Van Valkenberg as running centers. Reba Denney, Inita Neal, and Bonita Ralston lead the scoring; while Lois Marshall, Irene Crick, and Ermal Cummings were the able guards.

THE Southwestern Track Team of 1920 had a very successful season. It made its debut on March 13, when five men were sent to the indoor meet at Kansas City. The relay team returned with gold medals.

A meet was held with Oklahoma A. and M. early in the season and the Builders, not being in the best of shape at the time, were defeated. Southwestern won by a comfortable margin in the meets with Chilocco and Pittsburg Normals as well as in the state meet at Emporia.

Two members of the team went to the Missouri Valley meet at Ames, Iowa. Keyes won first in the low hurdles, but Captain Kastor failed to place, due to an injury to his hip received in the early trials.

There is plenty of material for the 1921 season and under the leadership of Captain Kahler the team should make a good showing at the state meet.

The

Baseball

1920 Team

COACH BATES, CURRY, WELLS, DALBOM, SEAMAN, CAIRNS

MATERIAL was plentiful and of good class for Kansas conference baseball last spring. Eight letter men were available at the opening of the season, besides several other experienced players of known ability.

The first conference game with St. John's resulted in a victory for Southwestern, and the four remaining games with the Saints were also won by the Builders.

An up-state trip concluded the season and although the team lost the greater percentage of their encounters, the games were good exhibitions of the diamond game and the last contest played with the Washburn nine took extra innings with a one to nothing score. Bethany College was defeated by a narrow margin. Two games were lost to St. Mary's and Camp Funston was likewise winner in a wierd contest marked by errors on both sides.

Prospects for the 1921 season are very bright and with five letter men back for duty, the team bids fair to make a formidable record for Southwestern in base ball.

I AM THE SPIRIT OF THE JINX

Come from the Skies to Help Southwestern to

Beat Fairmount Today

Ha! Ha! You thought you broke my spell when you blew me up—never. My spirit has taken unholy glee in persecuting you from the night you stole me from the Mighty Moundbuilders and will everlastingly plague your footsteps. Count your victories over the purple and white since that fateful night—not one—neither are any forthcoming. Who gave you cold feet when you foolishly attempted to smear your colors on that fair school to the south last week? Who helped those ingenious Southwesterners paste their propaganda under your very noses? Who brings more rooters from Winfield than you can muster in a week in your kindergarten?

WHO BUT I, THE SPIRIT OF THE JINX.

Another hoodoo stone will take my place in the Builder's cemetery next week. Steal it if you dare. They defy you to your faces.

FAIRMOUNT, THE JIG'S UP.
SOUTHWESTERN WINS TODAY.

MISS HERR (to dilatory pupil)—“Do not neglect to keep your shoes polished, you can shine at one end if not at the other.”

BUILDER'S LARGEST STONE

A timid little Freshie to the Collegian box did come;
She dropped a penny in the slot and waited for the gum.

A Retrospect

Away from the many calls for copy, which made it necessary to "keep everlastingly at the staff," the telegrams speeding back and forth concerning cut number "two hundred and what-not," the final argument with the business manager concerning the high cost of printing just one more page, the steady grind day and night, and all the multitude of bothering and conflicting noises which have surrounded our Moundbuilder office -we seek a few moments of solitude to reflect upon a year's experience and incidentally to write this last editorial for our book.

It is with a genuine feeling of relief, mixed with a certain amount of pardonable pride that we place the result of our year's work into the hands of our readers. It has been our ambition to put out the best Moundbuilder in Southwestern's history. If we have failed, we are sorry; if we have succeeded, we are content. We have put forth every effort to avoid mistakes in names, in facts and records, and we hope that the number of such will be a minimum. We hope, too, that no satire will be so keen as to justly offend and that no freedom in the use of nick-names will be mistaken for lack of respect on the part of the editors. In short, it is our vain hope to have pleased everyone.

We realize that this publication could never have been possible, had it not been for the hearty co-operation of the Staff, Faculty, student-body, photographers, engravers and printers. To you all we feel an inexpressible debt of gratitude and take this means of expressing our appreciation. In conclusion, let it be said that we feel more than compensated for the work of the past year in that it was one of pleasant associations, and in that it presented the opportunity of serving Southwestern as best we could.

The Editor.
